CULTURE

This phenomenon known as Art Week (Dec. 2-7) is a time for creativity in all corners of the city (as this issue clearly proves), so you can bet hotels are getting in on the action as well. Here's what four properties have planned this year. —LRR

THE HOTEL

The Raleigh
1775 Collins Ave., Miami Beach, 305.534.6300, raleighhotel.com

Mondrian South Beach Hotel
1100 West Ave., Miami Beach, 305.514.1500, morganahotelgroup.com

THE PLAYERS

Hotelier Michael Shvo, architect Peter Marino and landscape master Raymond Jungles

World-renowned French sculptor Richard Orlinski

THE ART

Les Lalanne at The Raleigh Gardens is a monumental exhibition of work by the late French duo Claude François-Xavier Lalanne and Claude Lalanne curated by Shvo that will be showcased among a tropical garden designed by Marino and Jungles for The Raleigh.

The Richard Orlinski pop-up is an exhibition of the artist's brightly colored and colossal animal sculptures that will take over the Mondrian's lobby. Bonus: Attendees will "hear" the sculptures as each will play harmonized music during a reception on Dec. 4.

The Betsy
1440 Ocean Drive, Miami Beach, 305.531.6100, thebetsyhotel.com

Betsy co-owner, Wall Street executive and career philanthropist Lesley Goldwasser

Goldwasser has curated a photo exhibition that will span the property's 15,000 square feet of space and feature images by Pete Turner, Andy Sweet, Iké Udé, Michael Halsband and Andrew Kaufman. There will also be a new permanent exhibit in the hotel's library vestibule titled The Beatles in India by Paul Salzman.

The National
Miami Beach, 305.532.2311, nationalhotel.com

Artistic resident artist Miguel Paredes and French graffiti master Punk Me Tender

Owner makes updates of which were made-made as of press time) on Dec. 5, while Punk Me Tender will cover The National's lobby with a vinyl sticker poem penned by himself, as well as transform the property's iconic pool with a profusion of 3D butterflies on Dec. 6 and 7.
